Prologue - The Christening

Once upon a time in a faraway land, a princess named Aurora was born. The king and queen arranged a grand celebration for her christening, inviting all the fairies of the kingdom. The fairies of the Camelia, Rose, Diamond, Songbird, and Flame all gift the baby their blessings.

At last it is the Lilac Fairy's turn. But before she can bestow her gift, the Fairy of Darkness, Carabosse, appears, blazing with anger. She received no invitation, but she, too, has something for the baby: a curse. Some day, Aurora will prick her finger on a spindle and die.

The Lilac Fairy has yet to make her offering, though she cannot remove the curse. However, she can soften it. She promises that Aurora shall not die from the prick of her finger, but will fall into a deep sleep for one hundred years and be awakened by a prince's kiss. The Lilac Fairy's power is much stronger than Carabosse's, and the kingdom is filled with hope as the dark fairy is cast out.

Act 1 - The Spell

Sixteen years have passed, and the kingdom is celebrating Princess Aurora's birthday. Four suitors have traveled to seek her hand in marriage.

During the revelry, an old woman approaches the Princess and offers her a beautiful bouquet of flowers as a gift.

Delighted, Aurora shows her friends and family the array, but something in the bouquet has stuck her finger. She dances in a frenzy before falling to the ground, after which the old woman throws off her cape, revealing herself to be the vengeful Carabosse. Having fulfilled her curse, she vanishes in triumph.

The Lilac Fairy returns, reminding the grieved Court of her promise. She weaves a spell of sleep over the kingdom, only to wake upon the Princess's kiss.

Act 2 - The Vision

While the kingdom sleeps, one hundred years go by. The prince of a nearby kingdom, Prince Florimund, is out hunting until he grows bored and separates from his friends. He dreams of love, he fears he will never attain.

The Lilac Fairy appears and shows him a vision of Princess Aurora. Enchanted by what he has seen, Florimund begs the Fairy to take him to Aurora. The Lilac Fairy leads him to the hidden palace where Aurora sleeps.

Upon his arrival, Carabosse and her minions fight the prince and try to keep him from the Princess, but with the help of the fairies, Prince Florimund is triumphant. When he finds the Sleeping Beauty he awakens her with a kiss, breaking the spell.

Act 3 - The Wedding

The entire kingdom joyously attends the wedding of Princess Aurora to Prince Florimund, celebrating the end of the curse and paying tribute to hope. Guests come from far and wide, including storytellers like Little Red Riding Hood and Jewels to bless the marriage with prosperity.

The wedding celebration ends with a cheerful finale, where all in attendance close their sentiments to the newlyweds in dance.

Our fairytale ends with a final presentation of the Prince and Princess, who receive the Lilac Fairy's favor and blessing, restoring peace, love, and hope in the kingdom.
